DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 45-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The limitation as recited in claim 45, regarding the step of receiving at the display device a reply from the remote device when the communication manager fails to detect communication errors. The Examiner believes that the remote device provides a response when communication manager detects communication errors, and not when the manager fails to detect.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 2174

4. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

5. Claims 45-54 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Goldstein (US 5,410,326) in view of Abrams et al. ("Abrams", US 6,724,732 B1).

As per claims 45-46, Goldstein teaches a method of providing an interactive display on a display device in a network that controls a remote device in the network, the method comprising: selecting a display object on a device display in the network, generating at the display device a request associated with the selected display object, initializing, at the display device, a communication manager that monitors communication with the remote device, sending the request to the remote device in the network so that a corresponding remote method is invoked, receiving at the display device a reply from the remote device, analyzing the received reply to determine whether the reply corresponds to the selected display object, and displaying an interactive graphical interface on the display device when the received reply corresponds to the selected display object (fig. 3; col. 7, lines 1-32; col. 10, lines 45-63).

Goldstein does not teach the step of receiving the reply from the remote device when the communication manager detects communication errors. Abrams teaches a method of dynamic adjustment of timers in a communication network wherein responses are provided when data communication errors are detected (abstract). It would have been obvious to an artisan at the time of the invention to combine Goldstein's teaching with Abrams in order to prevent erroneous data communication session termination.

As per claims 47-48, Abrams teaches the steps of adding time to a timer of the communications manager when the remote device requests additional time for sending the reply, and setting a countdown timer to a predetermined value, resetting the countdown timer to the predetermined value when the countdown timer expires, monitoring a number times the countdown timer expires before the reply is received from the remote device, and terminating communications with the remote device when the number of times the countdown timer expires reaches a predetermined limit (col. 2, lines 10-55).

Claims 49-51 are similar in scope to claims 45-47, and are therefore rejected under similar rationale.

Claims 52-54 are similar in scope to claims 45-48, and are therefore rejected under similar rationale.
